

Grandview Palos Verdes Notes Biggest Week End of the Year

Grandview Palos Verdes is one home development which does not view 1961 with any degree of gloom. The noted Peninsula community reports that last week end was the biggest of the young year, with over $350,000 in sales.

"This overwhelming public acceptance of Grandview," said director of sales William C. Kulow, "bears out a premise I have always held, that whether it be buyer's market, seller's market, boom or slow-down, there is always a demand for the right home, at the right price, in the right location."

IMMEDIATE occupancy, he said, is now available in some plans. Grandview homes are priced from $25,800 and contain two bedrooms and den, three and four bedrooms and family room. All have two full baths, oversize double garages, lath and plaster walls and ceilings, oak parquet hardwood floors, ash cabinetry, custom-styled fireplaces and generous usage of ceramic and imported mosaic tiling.

One fourth of last week end's sales were through Grandview's trade-up plan, which brings the company's resources to bear in gaining the maximum possible price for the present home.

GRANDVIEW'S trade plan has been blazing a trail in the field for the Greater Los Angeles area, and is seen by experts as "the shape of things to come."

Carson Area Street Work

Authorization of $3500 for the reconstruction of the deteriorated pavement on the east side of Kenwood Ave. from 208th St. to northerly of Milton St. was announced by Supervisor Burton W. Chace.

Chace said the work will improve the riding quality and reduce present maintenance costs. Motorists should drive with caution in the area when construction begins, he added.

'Little Folks' Store Opened

Beck's "Little Folks" store opened its doors to the public this week in its new home at Rolling Hills Plaza, new $15,000,000 shopping center at Crenshaw and Pacific Coast Hwy. in Torrance.

Formerly located at 3771 Pacific Coast Hwy. in Welteria, Mrs. Beck has been a resident of the South Bay for more than 25 years, with two successful years in the business of outfitting South Bay children in a special, sprightly sort of way.

"We feature unusual style for youngsters, so we make it a point to stock quality brand names like Kate Greenaway, Joselle, Wee Togs, Jac Borgenicht and Genway."

In her spacious new surroundings, Mrs. Beck will continue to emphasize the personalized service which made her former operation so attractive to South Bay residents. The store will carry a complete line of clothing for both boys and girls up to the age of 12.

Laws on Sunday Closing Violate Religious Freedom, Editor Says

Although their church's religious liberty efforts most often cite attempts to establish Sunday laws, the Seventh-day Adventists this week declared that their efforts are not anti-Sunday but pro-freedom.

Writing in an editorial in the current issue of "The Review and Herald," official seventh-day Adventist newspaper published in Washington, D. C., which circulates to thousands of Southland homes, Kenneth H. Wood, one of the journal's editors, admits that his church opposes Sunday laws.

"BUT LET this point be clear," states Wood. "We would oppose seventh-day Sabbath laws as strenuously as we oppose Sunday laws. In this contest, the real issue is not that we believe Sunday is without Scriptural support: the issue is freedom of conscience — religious liberty."

Adventists protest vigorously claims that theirs is a strictly anti-Sunday position, Editor Wood writes. "We are militant advocates of religious liberty because we believe man is born with the right to worship God as he sees fit, without let or hindrance by government."

"THIS IS an inalienable right. It is the right of the Catholic, the Jew, the Moslem, the Buddhist, the Shintoist, the atheist. While we take second place to no one in love of country, patriotism, and loyalty, we believe that man's highest allegiance must be to God. If the laws of man demand obedience in opposition to God's claims, God's requirements come first."

Wood says Adventists oppose any move to breach the wall between church and state in the United States for three reasons:

1. "The Constitution forbids any 'establishment of religion' by the government. . . . We fear this kind of union, because history proves that whenever churches have been able to get the state to do their bidding, freedom has disappeared.
2. "Because church - state union corrupts the church. Inevitably under a church-dominated government, religious tests for officers are applied. In the history of the colonists when one could vote and hold office only if he was a member of the church, many joined the church for political advantage. Though unconverted, they made a profession of Christianity, and their presence in the church weakened its spiritual power."
3. "We feel a deep responsibility to preserve the heritage of freedom that has been bequeathed to us at such frightful cost. We are children of the Reformation. Our forebears stood courageously for the freedoms that we have inherited."

"IT IS TRUE," Wood asserts, "that we oppose Sunday laws. We do so because Sunday laws (no matter how they may be disguised) are religious laws. They have no place among civil statutes."

"We disagree decidedly with most other religious people on the Sunday issue, but we will defend their civil rights to believe as they do."
